WHAT IS CRYPTOCURRENCY?

Cryptocurrency is widely known as digital currency accepted worldwide, giving you the authority to own billions anonymously. Cryptocurrency is now a widely used medium of exchange which is gaining popularity with trust. Cryptocurrency being invisible is commonly used for online transactions involving online assets. Some banks and other financial institutions also accept cryptocurrency as a mode of payment. The popularity of Cryptocurrency lies in its ambiguity of data. Common advantages of using cryptocurrency is secrecy, decentralization and traceability.

One of the famous and popular Cryptocurrency prevailing in the Market- Bitcoin. Bitcoin is a decentralized and can be transferred instantly from one account to another and interests negligible legal observations. Bitcoins transactions are transparent and clear hence arduous security protocols are followed to ensure prompt payments.

Invented by Satoshi Nakamoto in 2009, Bitcoin is an open source software. It is not owned by any company or person. Its stored in centralized networks. Transactions are transparent and there are no interventions of banks or any other financial companies. Peer to peer transactions happen without much limitations.

The exchange of bitcoins in exchange of bitcoins through the blockchain connected network virtually promising a virtual money transaction is called Bitcoin trading.

With Bitcoin, the volatile cryptocurrency, is an incredible addition to the finance trading portfolio, helping you to trade even when the market is not eventful.

With bitcoin trading, the volatility of the market facilitates high profitability in split seconds, without much hassle as compared to other financial trade transactions.

BLOCKCHAIN TECHNOLOGY

Blockchain is a new and secure way of storing and moving data around so that instead of data remaining centralized in a single location, it will be distributed throughout a network and held together with the help of cryptography.

Cryptocurrency being decentralised, has certain security guidelines to be followed that makes it unique and secure for transactions. Thanks to block chain technology for offering a hand to ensure the secure transactions.

The uniqueness of cryptocurrency is that cryptocurrency ledger is published online and visible but it also accommodates the feature to stay anonymous while transacting money.
